UNI OPERA PRESENTS

OPERA SHOWCASE

2015

APRIL 22, 2015 | 7:30 pm

BENGTSON AUDITORIUM, RUSSELL HALL
FREE ADMISSION
In this aria, Prospero, a powerful sorcerer and the rightful Duke of Milan, summons a tempest with his incantations. He plans to lure his rivals, including his brother Antonio, to the island where he will take revenge and regain his title. This work is a collaboration between UNI Opera and the UNI Dance Program.
A Scotch Verdict was conceptualized, created, and performed at the University of Northern Iowa by two of our own professors. The book and lyrics were written by Dr. Cynthia Goatley, Professor of Theatre, and the music and lyrics by Dr. Rebecca Burkhardt, Professor of Music. A Scotch Verdict is a musical drama that tells the story of Ella, a university professor in modern day America who is researching the 1810 case of Jane Pirie and Marianne Woods v. Lady Cumming Gordon. Ella travels to Edinburgh, Scotland to research the case, and past and present collide as she is drawn into Jane and Marianne’s story. In “The Roster,” we watch alongside Ella as Jane and Marianne’s dream thrillingly comes to fruition and their new boarding school is assembled. When the affluent Lady Cumming Gordon offers her granddaughter, Jane Cumming, as a potential student, her eventual admission creates a ripple effect throughout the community and new students pour in. When Jane Cumming later accuses the two schoolmistresses of having an affair in the presence of their students, Lady Cumming Gordon advises her friends to remove their children from the school. Deprived of their livelihood, Jane and Marianne sue Lady Cumming Gordon for libel. During the first Judge’s entrance in “The Judges Convene,” Lords Meadowbank, Hope, Glenlee, and Robertson consider the case and their own perceptions of female virtue. Program note by Alexandra Saulsbury.

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart

Così fan tutte (1790) (1756-1791)

Dorabella: JoAnna Geffert
Fiordiligi: Katherin Kneisley
Accompanist: Yu-Ting Su

In this duet from what many consider to be Mozart’s finest opera, the two sisters have recently been propositioned by two handsome foreigners. At first they resist, but after urgings from their maid, Despina, they begin to lose their resolve. Little do they know the “foreigners” are actually their own boyfriends disguised as strangers on a bet to see whether their lovers are true-hearted. Dorabella, the more adventurous of the two, decides first that she would like the dark-haired man. Luckily, the more stoic Fiordiligi prefers the blond!

Giacomo Puccini

La bohème (1896) (1858-1924)

Musetta: Lara Wasserman
Alcindoro: Will Lubaroff
Marcello: Branden Haralson
Mimi: Michelle Monroe
Clubbers: UNI Opera Ensemble
Stage Director: Noelle Smith
Accompanist: Korey Barrett
Perhaps one of the most celebrated and easily recognized arias in the operatic repertoire, “Quando m’en vo” is the personal manifesto of Musetta, a young coquette in Puccini’s La bohème. The story revolves around two pairs of bohemian lovers living in the Latin Quarter of Paris in the 1840s. In this scene, Musetta has stumbled upon her old lover, Marcello. Although she is accompanied by an elderly and very wealthy suitor, Alcindoro, Musetta is fixated on capturing the attention of Marcello. She sings of her beauty, the manner in which all men fawn over her, and the deep satisfaction she gains from being admired by all. Eventually, her plan works and she ensnares Marcello’s affections, despite his best effort to ignore her. Our scene tonight has been updated and set in a steam punk club. Program note by Noelle Smith.

Spiel’ ich die Unschuld vom Lande ........................................ Johann Strauss II
Die Fledermaus (1874) (1825-1899)

Adele: Sarah Draffen
Frank: Aaron DeSantiago
Ida: Ali Henkle
Accompanist: Yu-Ting Su

In this Act III aria, after a successful night at the masked ball, sisters Adele and Ida follow “Chevalier Chagrin” (who is actually Frank, the director of a prison) to the jail. Believing that he can help her transition her career from chambermaid to actress, Adele pulls out all the stops to show Frank her versatile acting skills.

Act II, Tableau ii: A Dressmaker’s Room ................................. Gustav Charpentier
Louise (1900) (1860-1956)

Camille: Marie Sorenson
Gertrude: JoAnna Geffert
Irma: Kayla Kjeldseth
Elise: Michelle Monroe
Suzanne: Lauren Soukup
Louise: Alexandra Saulsbury
Forewoman: Katherine Kneisley
Blanche: Megan Grey
Errand Girl: Noelle Smith
Accompanist: Korey Barrett

The title character of the opera works in a dressmaker’s shop. As the scene opens, the seamstresses are working, bickering, and chattering about their lives in Paris. They notice that Louise has been crying and keeping to herself, and they speculate that she might be in love. She denies it, but becomes flustered when Irma launches into a song on the subject of love. As the girls dreamily sing about their love for Paris, Louise runs out to meet her lover, Julien.
This scene is an exciting collaboration between UNI Opera and the UNI Dance program. Undergraduate student Kaitlin Boelman choreographed this dance to a different piece of music—I then asked her to “retrofit” the dance to this aria. It was an exciting process to watch her movement take on a new life to Mignon’s wistful words and music. The opera is based on the novel Wilhelm Meister by Goethe and follows the life of Mignon, who as a young girl was captured by a band of gypsies and taken far from her home. Years later, she meets Wilhelm who saves her from the gypsies. She wistfully sings to him about her distant memories of home and her life before the kidnapping.

The show boat Cotton Blossom has just docked in Natchez, Mississippi. It is 1887 and Magnolia, the daughter of the show boat’s captain, has ventured off the boat to see the town. She encounters the handsome riverboat gambler, Ravenal, and the two are immediately drawn to one another. In this great American standard, the two flirt, saying they could “Make Believe” that they love each other. As they make believe, they begin to fall in love.
Meine Lippen, sie küßen so heiß’ ........................... Franz Lehár

Giuditta (1870-1948)

Giuditta: Noelle Smith
Dancers and Escorts: Members of the UNI Opera Ensemble and UNI Dance Program
Accompanist: Korey Barrett

Giuditta is the last operetta written by Franz Lehár, and is generally viewed as his greatest accomplishment, surpassing even his most popular work, The Merry Widow. The opera tells the story of Octavio, an Army officer, and Giuditta, a young married dancer. The two become lovers, though things turn sour after Octavio’s regiment moves on and he refuses to desert his duty for Giuditta. Alone, Giuditta decides to work as a nightclub dancer in the Alcazar nightclub in North Africa. She is an immediate sensation, thrilling audiences with her sensual song and dance. "Meine Lippen, sie küßen so heiß” is her torch song, performed at the club to a captive audience.

Program note by Noelle Smith.

The Promise of Living ................................................... Aaron Copland

The Tender Land (1954) (1900-1990)
Soloists: Morgan Kramer, Andrew Hanson, Luke Fosselman, Katherin Kneisley, JoAnna Geffert, Branden Haralson, Aaron DeSantiago
UNI Opera Ensemble
Accompanist: Korey Barrett

Great American composer Aaron Copland wrote only one opera, The Tender Land. The opera is set in rural Midwestern America in the 1930s and celebrates the values of a farming community, as well as the dream of leaving home and exploring the world beyond your own fence. In this ensemble, the community gathers together to reflect on the future and what they have accomplished by working together. With this piece, we reflect on what we have accomplished with UNI Opera this year, and we send our graduates off into their futures.

University of Northern Iowa
Welcome to the 2015 Opera Showcase! Our program tonight features a combination of new scenes and work the students of UNI Opera have done throughout the 2014-2015 academic year. It has been an exciting year for our program. UNI Opera has performed at the fall Scholarship Benefit, presented a scenes preview of The Merry Wives of Windsor in November, a double cast full production of The Merry Wives of Windsor in February (including a wildly successful school performance), scenes from Dead Man Walking with NISO during Jake Heggie’s residency, and now this showcase. We have done outreach at local schools, our students have given recitals and performed scenes and roles in classes, and they have sung successfully in competitions and auditions throughout the school year. I could not be more proud of the artistic work our students, faculty, and staff have accomplished this year. A sincere thank you to the hundreds of people who have been integral to this music making.

Tonight our program features two exciting collaborations with the UNI Dance program—both pieces were choreographed and set to other music and successfully taken to ACDFA. With the help and support of dance faculty Mandy Masmar, the movement was then reset to the two arias you will hear tonight. This process was a first for me, and it was very exciting to work with our University’s talented dancers.

Three of our scenes began as class projects in the opera curriculum. A Scotch Verdict is a project from the Opera Performance One class I am teaching this semester. The show was written by Cynthia Goatley and Rebecca Burkhardt, two UNI faculty members who are dear friends of UNI Opera, and the class has spent this semester learning about musical preparation, motivated movement, and basic acting skills and analysis culminating in this performance. For many of the people in these scenes, it is their first time performing in an opera on stage! The Mozart and Strauss scenes began their lives in the Advanced Vocal Performance course I teach for graduate students. The women in the scenes underwent a lengthy character analysis and studied recitative, spoken dialogue, arias, and ensemble scenes from each opera and presented them in small groups in class. I have taken the staging they created and reshaped and expanded it to fit this stage.

As an opera educator, one of the things I value most is teaching students to work effectively in an ensemble and to embody the idea that every person on stage is in invaluable part of telling the story. Both the scenes from Louise and The Tender Land are new tonight, and are excellent vehicles for the extremely strong ensemble our students have created with each other this year. As Stanislavski famously stated, “There are no small roles, only small actors,” and our students have taken that to heart every second they are on stage.

The arias are taken from the repertoire selected for the singers by their applied voice teachers in the studio. I would like to publicly thank the outstanding voice faculty at UNI for their work with our students and their tireless support of me and our program throughout the year. This showcase is dedicated to you!

Thank you for supporting UNI Opera! I truly believe that anything is possible for this program, and you our audience are necessary for our success. Watch the School of Music website for the UNI Opera dates for the 2015-2016 year; we will have two scenes programs and a full production in the Gallagher-Bluedorn’s Great Hall!

Until next year-
