About the Artists

Justin Weber is a senior percussionist at the University of Northern Iowa. As a transfer student from Iowa Central Community College, Justin previously studied with Jeremy Smith and participated in all the offered instrumental ensembles.

During his time at UNI, Justin has participated in a variety of music ensembles including Symphonic Band, Wind Ensemble, multiple percussion ensembles, Brazilian Samba, West African Drum Ensemble, and chamber ensembles. Outside of UNI, Justin spends his time drawing, video editing, and writing and recording his own music. Justin will graduate with a degree in Music Technology in May and will begin working as an audio engineer for Executive J Sound and Lighting in the Council Bluffs/Omaha area.

Jesse Sheehan is an aspiring percussion performance and instrumental music education major from Cedar Rapids Iowa. He has participated in multiple ensembles including percussion ensembles, taiko drumming, and marching band where he was a section leader for the 2024 season. He has also participated in large ensembles including Symphonic Band, Northern Iowa Symphony Orchestra, and Wind Ensemble. Jesse has given international performances with the Northern Iowa Symphony Orchestra and Panther Marching Band including a recent performance in the London New Year's Day Parade. As an educator, Jesse currently works with the UNI New Horizons band and has taught drumline at Williamsburg High School.
