Denis Salvini began the study of French Horn at an early age and developed his skills with such notable teachers as Luca Benucci and Konstantin Becker. In 1995 he graduated with a performer's certificate from the Brescia Conservatory and in 2007 received his Master Degree from the Bergamo Conservatory. He maintains an active performing career with several Italian wind orchestras and ensembles. He presently is a member of the Valtellina Wind Orchestra, and he is principal horn in the Gianandrea Gavazzeni Symphony Orchestra. He has also performed and served as soloist with many brass and "festival" bands in Northern Italy. Since 1998 he has developed his skills as a composer having studied with Antonio Giacometti, Stefano Gervasoni, Jan van der Roost, Franco Cesarini and Claudio Boncompagni. He has works published through Animando Music Publishers in Italy. In recent years however he has focused most of his energies toward conducting bands and orchestras throughout the world. He has studied conducting with Ronald Johnson, Lorenzo della Fonte, Roberto Tolomelli, and Arturo Andreoli. He has enrolled in conducting master classes and seminars led by Douglas Bostock, Eugene Corporon, Jan Cober, Felix Hauswirth, Jacob de Haan, Andreas Spörri, Giancarlo Aquilanti, Frank L. Battisti, and Dennis L. Johnson. Since 2003 he has held the position of conducting teacher at the Brescia Band Center and the Ripatransone Master Classes. He additionally serves as principal conductor of Vallecamonica Wind Orchestra which in 2007 and 2011 won first prize at the International Wind Orchestra contest in Riva del Garda, Italy. Maestro Salvini was admitted to the final session of the International Conducting contest at the World Music contest in Kerkrade, The Netherlands and placed first in the "Palmiero Giannetti" international conducting competition in Siena (2009). He works also as adjudicator in European Band Contests, and he has been a leader in promoting original wind music and has premiered works by such notable composers as Steven Bryant, Eric Whitacre and Lewis Buckley and more. In 2009 he presented the world premiere of "Due Momenti" a work for 50 brass by Andrea Morricone. In 2008 he was invited to be the guest conductor for the Baltic State Opera Orchestra and the Hanseatica Chamber Orchestra in Gdansk, Poland. In 2009 he conducted a concert for the Italian Suisse Radio in Lugano, Switzerland. In all, he has conducted over 300 performances throughout the world including Italy, Austria, The Netherlands, Switzerland, Turkey, Poland and the United States.
