PROGRAM NOTES

The melody heard in Break Forth, O Beauteous Heavenly Light was composed by Johann Schop (ca. 1590—1664) and was first known as Ermuntre dich, mein schwacher Geist (Rouse thyself my weak spirit). It was first published in Leipzig in 1641 in Johann Rist's Himmlische Lieder (Heavenly or Celestial Songs), where the tune appeared in triple meter along with text by Rist. J.S. Bach probably found an altered version of the tune in Johann Cruger's Praxis Pietatis Melica (1647) and subsequently harmonized it in various settings. This particular setting is from the second cantata of his Christmas Oratorio from 1737.

The original melody had a different character in its original form, as it was more closely related to Renaissance musical style. By the time Bach harmonized the tune in the 18th century, musical preferences had shifted: the rhythm of the melody was made more consistent, the tempo became slower, and the harmony and counterpoint was more complex. This setting is still sung in modern churches at Christmas and is commonly known as Break Forth, O Beauteous Heavenly Light.

- Program note by arranger

Luminescence is based on fragments from the melody Ermuntre dich, mein schwacher Geist (Rouse Thyself, My Weak Spirit), which was written by Johann Schop and subsequently harmonized in several settings by Johann Sebastian Bach. It is most commonly known as the Christian hymn Break Forth, O Beauteous Heavenly Light. It may enrich the overall musical experience, both for the ensemble and for the audience, to hear the original chorale before the piece is played.

- Program Note by composer

Salvation is Created is by Pavel Tschesnokoff, who belongs to a late-Romantic group of Russian "spiritualist" composers that included Bortniansky and Gretchaninoff. Tschesnokoff wrote a choral conducting text and produced more than 500 choral works; the choral nature of this work is as resplendent as the transcription is classic. The simple musical form comprises two stanzas. Horn and clarinets, then the trombone section, carry the melodic "question," and the full ensemble supports the "answer" each time.

- Program note by Brian Casey

In 2008, Google and YouTube commissioned Academy Award winner (Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon) and UNESCO Goodwill Ambassador Tan Dun to compose a new work -- Internet Symphony "Eroica" -- as part of the inaugural YouTube Symphony Orchestra project. Musicians from around the world were invited to audition by submitting videos of their interpretations of the Internet Symphony to be judged by members of leading international orchestras. There were more than 3,000 auditions from more than 70 countries. The project culminated in a performance at Carnegie Hall on April 15, 2009, that was webcast and is still available on YouTube. More than 22 million people from 200 countries on six continents have experienced Tan Dun's feeling of a global music community which is encapsulated in his Internet Symphony "Eroica".

In the words of Tan Dun:

The Internet is an invisible Silk Road, joining different cultures from around the world. East or West, North or South, and this project has created a classical music phenomenon, bringing together musical heroes from all corners of the globe.

When I was conceiving this work, it was during the China Olympics. On the streets of New York, London, Beijing, Shanghai, I heard the noise of people cheering and moving around beautifully. I was passing by an automotive garage and I found three brake drums from different automobiles -- these car parts -- and it was a beautiful sound ... and I realized this is the spirit of the young. This is the spirit of today.

- Program Note by Peter Stanley Martin, Autograph Editions, Series Editor

Sun Dance was written in 1997 on a commission from the Austin Independent School District to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their All-City Honor Band Festival, and it was premiered by that group on March 18 of that year. Ticheli writes about the piece:

While composing Sun Dance, I was consciously attempting to evoke a feeling: bright joy. After completing the work, I found that the music began to suggest a more concrete image -- a town festival on a warm, sun-washed day. I imagined townspeople gathered in the park, some in small groups, some walking hand in hand, others dancing to the music played by a small band under a red gazebo. Throughout the composition process, I carefully balanced the songlike and dancelike components of "bright joy." The oboe's gentle statement of the main melody establishes the work's song-like characteristics, while in the work's middle section, a lyrical theme of even greater passion appears. Several recurring themes are indeed more vocal than instrumental in nature.

The work's dancelike qualities are enhanced by a syncopated rhythmic figure... The figure is used not only in the main melody, but also as a structural building block for virtually everything in the piece, including other melodies, accompaniment figures, and episodes.

- Program Note from Baylor University Concert Band concert program, 18 February 2018

Lost Valley was inspired by my experiences on the Lost Valley Trail in the Buffalo National River Park in Ponca, Arkansas:

*Walking along the path of frost covered stone,
There seems a serenity in the trees.
I can only feel the power of being alone,
And that such loneliness brings me to my knees.*

*I can imagine the life unseen,
When humankind is not wandering here,
And all the hidden creatures awake,
To breathe and dance without any sense of fear.*

*The moss covered boulders breathe silently
Of ecstatic waters frolicking near,
When the Earth sighed tortuously,
In anticipation of man, came fear.*

- Jennifer E. Rose

Kauyumari

Among the Huichol people of Mexico, "kauyumari" means "blue deer". The blue deer represents a spiritual guide, one that is transformed through an extended pilgrimage into a hallucinogenic cactus called peyote. It allows the Huichol to communicate with their ancestors, do their bidding, and take on their role as guardians of the planet. Each year, these Native Mexicans embark on a symbolic journey to “hunt” the blue deer, making offerings in gratitude for having been granted access to the invisible world, through which they also are able to heal the wounds of the soul. When I received the commission from the Los Angeles Philharmonic to compose a piece that would reflect on our return to the stage following the pandemic, I immediately thought of the blue deer and its power to enter the world of the intangible as akin to a celebration of the reopening of live music. Specifically, I thought of a Huichol melody sung by the De La Cruz family -- dedicated to recording ancestral folklore -- that I used for the final movement of my piece, Altar de Muertos (Altar of the Dead), commissioned by the Kronos String Quartet in 1997.

I used this material within the orchestral context and elaborated on the construction and progressive development of the melody and its accompaniment in such a way that it would symbolize the blue deer. This in turn was transformed into an orchestral texture which gradually evolves into a complex rhythm pattern, to such a degree that the melody itself becomes unrecognizable (the imaginary effect of peyote and our awareness of the invisible realm), giving rise to a choral wind section while maintaining an incisive rhythmic accompaniment as a form of reassurance that the world will naturally follow its course.

While composing this piece, I noted once again how music has the power to grant us access to the intangible, healing our wounds and binding us to what can only be expressed through sound.

Although life is filled with interruptions, Kauyumari is a comprehension and celebration of the fact that each of these rifts is also a new beginning.

Gustavo Dudamel, now famously the director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, commissioned and premiered Gabriela Ortiz's Kauyumari.

Keepers of the House

I am intrigued by the relatively new data that all trees are interconnected; that indeed they communicate, send energy to each other, and care for each other. The evidence is overwhelming that all of our forests are alive and communicating, that the “magical trees” we dreamed about as children are real. And I wonder what that means for us. I find it unlikely that we are the exception, but more probably we've just lost the innate intuition that we are also part of the vast interwoven web of life.

- Program Note by composer

Sea Songs

Written in 1923 for the following year's Wembley Exhibition, Sea Songs is a march medley of three well-known sea shanties: Princess Royal, Admiral Benbow, and Portsmouth. Written in typical march form with a trio, it was published simultaneously for brass band and wind band, and was later transcribed by the composer for symphony orchestra. It should be noted that Sea Songs was originally intended to be the final movement of Vaughan Williams's Folk Song Suite.

- Program Note by Nikk Pilato

Run to the Light

Run to the Light was written for Eastman School of Music's Centennial Celebration. It was premiered by Eastman Wind Ensemble on Oct. 19, 2022. The piece is dedicated to a thousand or so very special people in Victoria, Texas.
