Symphonic Dances from West Side Story
By Leonard Bernstein

Born in Lawrence, Massachusetts, Bernstein was an American composer, conductor, and pianist noted for his accomplishments in classical and popular music. Bridging the gap between Concert Hall and Broadway, his flamboyant conducting style made him a glamorous musical figure. Bernstein was a longtime music director of the New York Philharmonic and was the first classical conductor to make several television appearances.

West Side Story is an American musical set in the Upper West Side of New York City during the 1950s. A gritty urban setting surrounded by rival street gangs, West Side Story is a modern take on Shakespeare’s romantic tragedy, Romeo and Juliet. It opened on Broadway in 1957 and received harsh criticism from journalists who found the performance much too realistic for a musical. The Dances, performed without pause, begin with the musical’s Prologue in which the Jets and Sharks face off only to be broken up by the police. This is followed by the musical’s most memorable ballad, Somewhere, a lush and poignant dream-dance sequence from the second act. The Scherzo paints a picture of city-kids enjoying some time away from the harshness of the city. The Mambo, perhaps one of the most popular movements, is an exciting and fast Cuban dance. In the 1950s, articles published in New York City announced an emerging “mambo revolution,” so it comes as no surprise that Bernstein added this Cuban-style movement. Dominated by different rhythms in the brass and percussion sections, it is a successful attempt at representing the combative and feuding gangs, albeit through dance. A quiet Meeting Scene follows in which the two lovers, Tony and Maria, first exchange words. Cool, Fugue delivers the hostile and explosive underpinnings of the Jets through a contrapuntal dance. The work closes with an ultimate deadly fight, the Rumble and the Finale, through a reprise of Somewhere, leaves the singular lover alone to mourn her Romeo, Tony, as he dies. The final cadence, an unresolved dissonance, is a quiet remembrance of the same harsh intervals of the opening Prologue.

About the Soloists

Sayyod Mirzomurodov is a native of Uzbekistan and started playing clarinet at age 8. He received his Bachelors degree from Uzbekistan State Conservatory in Tashkent. Sayyod performed with National Symphony Orchestra and Wind ensemble in Uzbekistan and other republics of Central Asia as a soloist and a chamber musician. Sayyod Mirzomurodov is pursuing his Master of Music degree in Clarinet Performance at the University of Northern Iowa where he is a student of Dr. McCandless.

Violinist Ross Monroe Winter's career spans multiple genres in the orchestral, chamber music, and solo fields as well as work in film and television. Currently a member of the Richmond Symphony (VA) and the IRIS Orchestra (TN), he served for two seasons as interim Associate Conductor of the Quad City Symphony Orchestra (IA/IL). Additional highlights of the coming season include solo appearances with Brazil's Orquestra Sinfônica da Universidade de Caxias do Sul and the Northern Iowa Symphony Orchestra in John Corigliano's "The Red Violin" Concerto. Recent solo appearances have been with the Northern Iowa Symphony Orchestra in separate duo concertos with Juilliard violin professor Laurie Smukler (Mozart's Concertone), and UNI's Julia Bullard (Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante); with Waterloo-Cedar Falls Symphony Orchestra (Vivaldi and Max Reger's Four Seasons); and with the Wintergreen Festival Orchestra in Anna Clyne's "Prince of Clouds": a concerto for two violins performed with Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra concertmaster Frank Almond, and conductor Laura Jackson. A sought-after teacher, Dr. Winter is Assistant Professor of Violin at the University of Northern Iowa School of Music. During the summers, he teaches violin and chamber music at the Wintergreen Summer Music Festival and Academy where he has also served as Academy Director, and is currently Principal Second Violin of the Wintergreen Festival Orchestra. Dr. Winter holds BM and MM degrees from the New England Conservatory of Music where he studied with Boston Symphony Orchestra concertmaster Malcolm Lowe, and from the State University of New York Purchase College-Conservatory of Music with Laurie Smukler as a graduate assistant. He completed his doctoral studies at The Catholic University of America's Benjamin T. Rome School of Music in Washington, DC with Jody Gatwood. Other principal teachers include Sylvia Rosenberg, Kurt Sassmannshaus, and Philip Setzer of the Emerson String Quartet.

Program Notes

Composer Note:

The Red Violin: Chaconne for Violin and Orchestra draws upon music I composed for the film of the same name. The film spans three centuries in the life of a magnificent but haunted violin in its travels through space and time. A story this episodic needed to be tied together with a single musical idea. For this purpose I used the Baroque device of a chaconne: a repeated pattern of chords upon which the music is built.

Against the chaconne chords I juxtaposed Anna’s theme, a lyrical yet intense melody representing the violin builder’s doomed wife. From these elements I wove a series of virtuosic etudes for the solo violin, which followed the instrument from country to country, century to century.

I composed these elements before the actual filming, because the actors needed to imitate actual performance of the music. Then, while the film itself was shot, I made - from Anna’s theme, the chaconne, and the etudes - this concert work. While I scored the film just for the soloist and string orchestra (to emphasize the “stringness” of the picture), I composed this seventeen-minute concert work for violin and full orchestra.

As The Red Violin: Chaconne for Violin and Orchestra begins, diaphanous ascending string lines unveil the chaconne chords, voiced in incantatory dotted rhythms, in low winds and brass. Then solo violin and orchestra utter, and expand on, Anna’s theme. Virtuosic etudes quicken the pace, lead to a rushing climax; these yield to a stratospherically high, gravely slow melody, which remembers, against slowly shifting string sonorities, Anna’s romantic theme. The string chords louden, strengthen with winds and brass: then the soloist reclaims, in determined accents this time, the diaphanous string line that opened the score. The orchestra halts to launch the soloist’s cadenza, impetuous and songful by turns: then the chaconne, in strings chords rendered brittle by sharp attacks with the wood of the bow, gradually climax in a grand tutti restatement of the incantatory opening and a whirlwind coda for all.
